

Solar power money back scam

Overview

These scams start with an unexpected phone call, message on social, or even an in-person visit. Or they might try to sign you up for a “free” program to make your home more energy efficient with. While reputable companies can help you save money with clean or solar energy improvements, scammers offer more than they can deliver. As more families consider solar energy improvements, dishonest companies exploit the fine print in solar panel. In the worst cases, homeowners have been left making payments on overpriced systems that don't work, with little to no support from the installation company that put the panels on their roof. To avoid getting scammed, you need to know what to look out for and when to walk away. They typically use the same handful of tricks over and over—which means once you know.
